First Focus Campaign for Children Legislative Scorecard

119TH CONGRESS, FULL SESSION

As the second session of the 119th Congress comes to a close, one truth stands out about the 119th Congress as a whole: children are not being treated as a national priority in Washington.

At a time when children are facing rising poverty, widening inequities, mental health crises, and increasing threats to their health, nutrition, and education, this report honors the 120 Champions and Defenders of Children — even as Congress as a whole has largely failed children through both inaction and openly hostile measures.

For example, the share of the federal budget devoted to children continues to decline, from a high of 11.98% in fiscal year (FY) 2021 to 8.43% in FY 2026, even as children and families struggle to afford basic necessities. Instead of acting to improve the lives and well-being of children, we will soon see the effect of legislation congressional leadership and President Trump enacted last year that slashed investments in Medicaid and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) — two of the most important lifelines for children — and moved to weaken or dismantle the U.S. Department of Education, the Department of Health and Human Services, USAID, and other agencies that exist to serve and protect young people.

In other words, this was not just a year of missed opportunities for children — it was a year in which Congress made choices that made children's lives harder, poorer, and less secure.

And yet, in the face of these headwinds, something else is also true.

There are members of Congress who consistently stood up for children.

This year's Champions and Defenders of Children include 120 lawmakers — 60 Champions and 60 Defenders — who repeatedly used their voices, votes, and leadership to advance the best interests of children. Across issues ranging from child poverty and nutrition to health care, education, child welfare, and safety, these senators and representatives did not treat children as an afterthought or a political bargaining chip. They made children a first focus.

Champions for Children are those who consistently pursued policies that put children first across a broad range of issues. Defenders of Children are those who, again and again, stepped forward to protect kids from harm and to support their well-being when it mattered most. In a Congress where children were often overlooked — or actively targeted for harm — these members provided a vital line of defense.

At the same time, we recognize that many other members of Congress also took important actions for children this year. Some cast key votes, sponsored or cosponsored meaningful legislation, or worked behind the scenes to support children and families in critical moments. We are grateful for those efforts, and we applaud every lawmaker who helped move children's priorities forward in any way.

Unfortunately, there is also a third group in Congress who consistently used the power of their office in ways that fail children. Some did so through neglect — by failing to prioritize and stand up for children when it mattered most.

Others went even further — sponsoring, cosponsoring, and voting for legislation that would actively cut children off from health care, take food from hungry children and families, undermine public education, weaken child protections, and roll back the systems that exist to help children grow, learn, and thrive.

Children feel the consequences of those choices every day.

That is why this Legislative Scorecard matters.

By shining a light on who is showing up for kids, the First Focus Campaign for Children's Scorecard is designed to provide recognition for those who constantly and repeatedly have stood up to champion and defend children when they need it the most. It is a tool for parents, advocates, and the public to thank those who are leading for children, to encourage others to do more, and to insist that every Member of Congress take their obligation to the next generation seriously.

The reality is that until every child has the health care, nutrition, education, safety, and opportunity they deserve, kids will need far more Champions and Defenders in Congress. Our Legislative Scorecard highlights more than 250 bills that Congress can and should act on right now. Consider it a roadmap for members of Congress who make the choice to commit to kids.

That roadmap is in black, white, and green in the following pages.

METHODOLOGY

First Focus Campaign for Children's Legislative Scorecard is intended as a tool to hold federal policymakers accountable for representing and addressing the needs of the nation's children.

The FFCC Legislative Scorecard is based on a points system that has been innovative since its creation in 2010. Points are awarded to lawmakers for introducing, sponsoring, or cosponsoring legislation of importance to children or for taking key votes in support of the "best interests of children." Furthermore, points are taken away when members of Congress introduce, sponsor, or cosponsor bills or take votes that would be harmful to children.

Other scorecards may measure positions on votes and legislation that have some impact on children. The FFCC Scorecard, however, stands apart because it scores only votes and legislation that primarily or disproportionately impact children. This criteria makes the FFCC Scorecard the most child-focused evaluation of lawmakers and legislation, and reflects lawmakers' support or lack of support for the "best interests of children" more accurately than other more general scorecards.

As the leading bipartisan voice for the nation's children, First Focus Campaign for Children also highlights in our scorecard the most extensive array of issues that impact children.

- Key Votes: Accompanying our Legislative Scorecard is a "Key Votes" section, which lists the votes that were scored in this legislative session. Members receive extra points if they show political courage to vote in the best interests of children despite an opposing position from a majority of their own party. Find the list of first session Key Votes for and against children on page 9 and second session Key Votes for and against children on page12.
- Key Bills: The FFCC Legislative Scorecard also lists the bills scored, all of which were chosen because they significantly or predominantly impact children. The FFCC Legislative Scorecard recognizes that lawmakers often negotiate and make decisions on legislation well before House and Senate votes. Consequently, rather than just tracking votes on bills and amendments, the FFCC Legislative Scorecard applies a more in-depth analytical framework.

Our scorecard awards points to policymakers based on their sponsorship and cosponsorship of key legislation that helps children, and original sponsors receive more points. We subtract points from lawmakers who sponsor or cosponsor bills that harm children. The dates covered by this scorecard are January 3, 2025 to September 8th, 2026. Find the list of first session Key Bills for and against children on page 8 and second session Key Bills for and against children on page 12.

Finally, we also award points based on actions such as major letters, floor speeches, and hearings that policymakers engage in that would positively or negatively affect children.

ANALYSIS

Women in Congress were 2.6 times more likely than men to stand as Champions or Defenders for children in 2026. More than 39% of women in Congress were named Champions or Defenders. In fact, women were exactly half of the 120 Champions and Defenders this year  despite representing just 28.8% of Congress (House and Senate).

In 2026, Congresswomen were 2.6x more likely than their male counterparts to stand as Champions or Defenders for children.

39% of Congresswomen were named Champions or Defenders, despite representing only 28.8% of Congress.

Caucus Membership Matters

Lawmakers in the House of Representatives' Congressional Dads Caucus and Congressional Mamas' Caucus were more likely to put children first and to be recognized as Champions or Defenders. Women in the Mamas' Caucus were 2.6 times more likely to be Champions or Defenders than women not in the Mamas' Caucus. Even more drastically, men in the Dads Caucus were 5.7 times more likely to be Champions or Defenders than men not in the Dads Caucus. This data suggests that these caucuses and their members are more likely to make policy with children's best interests in mind.

Children need more legislators who make children a priority in Congress.

A Regional Divide Persists

The Northeast leads all regions: The percentage of House and Senate Champions and Defenders from the Northeast (Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware) dropped slighlty to 40.4%, or 44 of their 107 member delegation in the 119th Congress.

The West finished as a strong second: 35.9% of Western House and Senate members (Alaska, Hawaii, California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Nevada) qualified as Champions or Defenders, with 33 of their 91 lawmakers making the cut.

The Midwest made a decent showing: 17.0% — or 17 of 98 — of House and Senate members qualified as Champions or Defenders in the Midwest (Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Missouri).

Southeast states lagged behind: Of the 135 Senators and Representatives from the Southeast (Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas) just 16, or 11.7%, qualified as Champions or Defenders.

The Southwest/Plains region came in last: Of the 103 members of Congress from the Southwest (Arizona, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas) and Plains region (Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota, and South Dakota), just 12, or 11.5%, qualified as Champions or Defenders.

In addition to the 120 Champions and Defenders from the five regions, the data shows that the lowest-scoring members are largely from the Southeast, Southwest/Plains, and Midwest regions. For example, Sens. Marsha Blackburn (TN), Cynthia Lummis (WY), Bernie Moreno (OH), Eric Schmitt (MO), and Rand Paul (KY), as well as Reps. Ralph Norman (SC), Ben Cline (VA), Mary Miller (IL), John Rose (TN), Gregory Steube (FL), Brandon Gill (TX), Andy Biggs (AZ), and Andrew Ogles (LA) were among the lowest-scoring members, and they represent states or districts from the lower-performing regions.

The Annie E. Casey Foundation (AECF) publishes the KIDS COUNT report, which annually ranks states based on a number of important indicators of child well-being. It is no surprise that the states with the best outcomes of child well- being according to the report have much higher percentages of Champions and Defenders than lower-performing states.

According to AECF's KIDS COUNT 2026 report, the states with the best child well-being outcomes have the highest percentage of federal policymakers who are Champions or Defenders of children. The top half have significantly higher numbers of champions and defenders than the bottom half.

In the KIDS COUNT "Best" tier of 13 states (New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Utah, Vermont, Minnesota, New Jersey, Connecticut, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Virginia, Wyoming, and Idaho), the percentage of Champions and Defenders was 26.8%, or 26 of 97.

In the second or "Better" tier of 12 states (Kansas, North Dakota, Colorado, Washington, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Illinois, Maine, South Dakota, Oregon, Montana, and Hawaii), 30.4% or 31 of 102 congressional members were Champions or Defenders.

In the third tier or "Worse" tier of 13 states (Rhode Island, Ohio, Missouri, Indiana, New York, Delaware, North Carolina, California, Michigan, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, and South Carolina), 43 of 217 members, or 19.8%, were Champions or Defenders.

And in the lowest or "Worst" tier of 12 states (Georgia, Arizona, West Virginia, Alabama, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Nevada, Alaska, Louisiana, New Mexico, and Mississippi), just 16.4%, or 20 of 122 members were Champions or Defenders. As both analyses demonstrate, the policymakers chosen by voters and the policies they prioritize for children truly matter.
